

DIVYAAH: FROM REJECTIONS TO REBOOTER

VIDEO TRANSCRIPT

Hi, my name is Divyaah. I'm an analyst based in Bengaluru. Five years ago, I decided to step away from my career to take care of my children. When I began job hunting a few years later, I faced rejection after rejection due to my career break, which was incredibly frustrating. However, I never lost hope.

When I discovered Accenture's Career Reboot Program for women, I saw a new opportunity and decided to apply. Following my interviews, I was thrilled to be offered a role. I deeply appreciate how Accenture provides career opportunities for women like me, who are eager to restart their careers after a break. They looked beyond my career gap, recognizing my skills, experience, and potential. This isn't common in every organization. Accenture also boasts a fantastic work culture with flexible hours that perfectly suit my needs.

My experience with the Career Reboot Program has been overwhelmingly positive. From the outset, the team made me feel at ease and comfortable, boosting my confidence about returning to the workforce. Their continuous support helped clear all my doubts, allowing me to focus on rejoining the workforce and applying my skills and experience to my chosen role.

As a rebooter, I've found Accenture's continuous learning and development opportunities to be incredibly beneficial. The mentorship and personalized development plans have helped me bridge the gap in my career. If you're worried about fitting back into the workplace after a career break, I encourage you to apply to Accenture's Career Reboot Program and give yourself a chance to rebuild your career.
